

“Place we call home”

By Zack Purdy

The Laws are set in stone
Where immigrants are united as one
To join forces with this one great nation
We call home

As most men and women stand alone
Only these set of rules will be the one
To give everybody the thing they desire.
That is our home.

Is it the odds alone?
That these rules and regulations
Will everyone get the respect they deserve?
To live in a better home?

After giving it some thought
It's finally decided
This Constitution is everyone's hope
For a better tomorrow
And a respectable future
In this place we call home

These set of rules states and it quote's
“We the people of the United States in order to form a more perfect union establish justice, insure domestic tranquility”

The end is near, for this convention
Then I was asked by my fellow peers
“What have you wrought?”
In response to their plea, I boast
“A republic, if you can keep it”

It has finally come to pass
The rules are now official
We can now live peacefully
In this place we now can call home.
